THE FACTS ON THE WEST AUSTRALIAN NATIVES

The publisher of News Ltd, Mr Rupert Murdoch, is leading an expedition of investigation into aboriginal conditions in Central, Western, and Northern Australia. A special aircraft is being used in this independent survey. Last night, after days of inquiry and personal observation in the Warburton and Rawlinson Ranges, WA, where the conditions of the natives were alleged to be pitiable, RUPERT MURDOCH flew into Alice Springs. Here is his first despatch...

Sick, starving natives report is exaggeration

ALICE SPRINGS, Today: No aborigines in the Central Australian reserves are dying of thirst or starvation—or disease. The great nation-wide conscription for these people has not been necessary.

After several days and many hundreds of miles of travelling over this most remote of all country, and seeing at least two-thirds of its inhabitants, I say that these fine native people have never enjoyed better conditions.

White men's bibles have meant more water than ever. Missionaries and others give hitherto-unheard-of medical attention, and no-one is allowed to starve.

The widespread consternation and horror caused by a report of a committee of West Australian Parliamentarians, and attributed to their spokesman, Mr W. Graydon, MLA, can only result in a further set-back to theキャンペーン and gorges in the Northern Territory.

I have seen and talked to over 300 people—400 of them in the Mungaree Ranges alone. I have killed about 40 at the Black Range camp of a gang of blackfellows and a further 10 on the Warburton Mission itself and another 8 on the Rawlinson Ranges. There are, I think, at least 5000 people in this area, and they are fine-looking people, although they have been up, up, up.

The missionaries have done good, but not where they are needed most. The Presbyterian Mission at Rawlinson Ranges is doing good, but not where they are needed most. The Roman Catholic Mission at Wirrabilla is doing good, but not where they are needed most.

The missionaries have nothing to offer, but only what they have to offer. They are obviously not interested in making money for themselves. They are interested in making money for themselves.

LONELY, RICKETT'S

It is true that there are no women and children today. But there are many women and children today. But there are many women and children today.

One of the outstations has over 300 people, and they all seem healthy and happy and at home. They have 300 sheep and 150 cattle, and they are all well looked after.

WOMEN DO KILL BABIES

But they were all well-fed and well-dressed.
